How it works

Centralized script automation of repetitive and ad-hoc tasks ensures consistent delivery of expected results while utilizing fewer resources. Augmentt Engage includes a Powershell script engine with access to hundreds of ready-made, variable driven scripts to control a wide range of popular SaaS applications. Attended, scheduled and unattended processing is made possible using scheduling features and password vaults. Audit compliance is maintained with job execution reports and archives.

Features

Powerful Script Engine

Powershell has been widely adopted as a robust, flexible and rich scripting language to help with the automation of tasks. Augmentt Engage includes an “engine” that processes submitted scripts that come bundled with the solution or have been developed by you.

Administration and Delegation

Augmentt Engage includes role-based access control to its features. Administrators are able to create/upload scripts, create targets and actions, and run or schedule those actions. Administrators can also delegate the running and scheduling of actions to other resources like HR department employees, or Helpdesk personnel.

Credential Security

Scripts often require specific access to various systems in order to complete their task. To do so the scripts must have access to login credentials (ID/Password) to those systems. The password vault make it possible to securely grant access to needed credentials, reducing the sharing of credentials with administrators.

Audit Visibility

Evidence is key to showing value, but also to supporting compliance. Augmentt Engage includes log details for all of the actions completed in the system.

Reports and Dashboards

Dashboards and reports make it easy to show evidence of the work completed.

Extensible Script Database

Augmentt Engage includes hundreds of existing scripts that are ready to work. As your environment grows and your SaaS application usage expands Augmentt Engage grows with you through expanded standard scripts or the scripts that you develop within your team.
