Fight Back Against Third–Party Marketplaces With ChowNow's Commission–Free Online Ordering

Third-party marketplaces like Grubhub and Uber Eats mislead restaurateurs into thinking that their platforms are the best way to get online and increase sales. However, these middlemen charge steep commissions that eventually bleed restaurants dry.

ChowNow builds independent restaurants their own online ordering systems, so restaurants can keep the profits in their pockets.

Here's what you need to know:

- While third-party delivery apps charge commissions of up to 40% on every order, ChowNow offers unlimited, commission-free orders for a low, flat rate.

- Unlike third-party marketplaces, ChowNow gives restaurants full control over their customer data so they can successfully market their takeout businesses.

- ChowNow provides restaurant partners with complimentary consulting through a single point of contact, while third-party marketplaces leave restaurants to fend for themselves.
